THE SILENCE

This is one story that should never be told, and Marina is so desperate she will do anything to stop it getting out.

Without a Trace by Lesley Pearce

Unwritten Rules by Pamela O'Rourke

Tall, dark and handsome as sin. With a smile that speaks to my soul.

Nathaniel Hawthorne is the epitome of the perfect man. But 12 years older and worlds wiser, my brother's best friend doesn't long for me the way I crave him.

He made that crystal clear when I kissed him last year, spurring him to leave London.

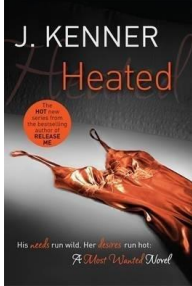

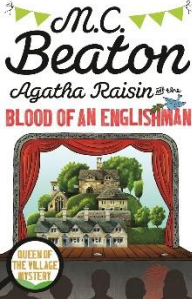

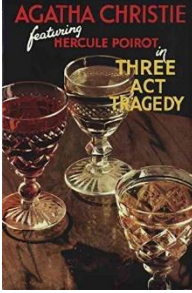

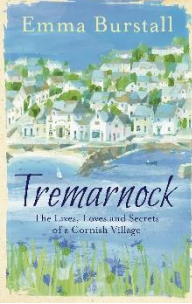

To leave me. Missing his guiding presence, I try to put aside these unrequited feelings, but I screw up.

I do something I can't take back, and from which there would be far-reaching consequences should the truth come to light.

Despite our months of radio silence, I instinctively reach for the person I trust most, and true to form, Nathaniel doesn't hesitate.

He's ready and willing to slay my demons alongside his own when he whisks me away to his childhood estate.

Our bond, once vulnerable, grows stronger by the day, but the unwritten rules of friendship stand. Yet, something feels different.

	Heated by J.Kenner I know better than to trust him, that I should never risk my heart. But fierce passion comes at a high price. I grew up believing in right and wrong, good and evil, black and white - that there were some boundaries that could never be crossed. And then I met Tyler Sharp. Bold, charming, and dangerously sexy, Tyler always gets what he wants. But his smile can be deceiving, his dealings sordid, his ambitions ruthless. I thought I was the one woman strong enough to resist him, but our need for each other is too urgent to deny. One look and I'm in trouble. One touch and I'm hooked. One night and I'm his. And once I fall, there's no going back.
	Blood of an Englishman by M.C. Beaton Even though Agatha Raisin loathes Christmas panto, her friend Mrs Bloxby, the vicar's wife, has persuaded her to support the local am dram society in their festive offering. Stifling a yawn at the production of Babes in the Wood, Agatha watches the baker playing an ogre strut and threaten on stage until a trapdoor opens followed by a scream and silence! Surely this wasn't the way the scene was rehearsed? When it turns out the local baker had been murdered most horribly, Agatha puts her team of detectives on the case. And they soon discover more feuds and temperamental behaviour in amateur dramatics than in a professional stage show and face more and more danger as Agatha and her team get too close to the killer.
	Three Act Tragedy by Agatha Christie Thirteen guests arrive for dinner at the house of Sir Charles Cartwright, the famous actor. To avoid bad luck, his secretary insists on making up the number to fourteen, but it is too late for one guest, who chokes to death on his aperitif. But when his martini glass is sent for chemical analysis, there is no trace of poison - just as Poirot predicted. What causes the famous detective greater anxiety, however, is the complete lack of any motive.
	Tremarnock by Emma Burstall A beautiful Cornish village, a shocking turn of events. Tremarnock is a classic Cornish seaside village. Houses painted in yellow, pink and white, cluster around the harbour, where fishermen still unload their daily catch. It has a pub and a sought after little restaurant, whitewashed, with bright blue shutters. Here, Liz has found sanctuary for herself and young daughter, Rosie far away from Rosie's cheating father. From early in the morning with her job as a cleaner, till late at night waitressing in the restaurant, Liz works hard to provide for them both. But trouble is waiting just around the corner. As with all villages, there are tensions, ambitions and secrets.
